

TOPIC

Ethics and Business Practices– Section V – Question 2

QUESTION

An engineer working for an engineering company decides to take a new engineering position at a competing company in two weeks and informs their current employer. What should he/she not do?

- I) Immediately quit job at his/her current employer.
- II) Copy and take home sensitive engineering calculations, etc.
- III) Copy and take home customer and vendor information.
- IV) Tell his/her customers and vendors that he/she is leaving.

- (A) I, II and III
- (B) II, III and IV
- (C) I
- (D) IV

HINTS

- It is okay to tell everyone that you are leaving.
- No one should copy and take home company property without permission.
- Employee may leave current job before two weeks are up, however, they are not ethically bound to quit their current job.

CONTRIBUTOR

Glen Besterfield